I'm an Experienced Software engineer and currently seeking new opportunities in your country. I'd love to find out if I may be a fit for any of your current openings, actually after my experiences in my homeland (Iran), I am going to join an international company with new technical challenges to satisfy my interest in learning and also would help my next workplace to develop at the same time.

I'm hard work and experienced in different projects, I can have a pivotal role in a software team and move on any software project with deep understanding and iterative process,

I think software programming must be result-oriented and any milestones must have a tangible deliverable.
